SELECTED TALES

MIDNIGHT IN THE WILDERNESS.

A TALE OF 1688.

BY MRS. EMILY W. ELLSWORTH.

[Concluded.]

Thus occupied, her heart filled with indignation and sorrow, Marion perceived the approaches of day, the morning, she believed, her wedding day. The bright and beautiful world looked joyful, and smiled a thousand welcomes on the glorious sun, as he rose in unclouded brilliancy from the deep blue horizon. The rich and ever varying notes of the mocking bird echoed the songs of all the feathered choristers, filling the forests with their witching melody, while the sportive waterfalls gushing in a thousand tiny rills from the rude rocks, met midway, and rushed sparkling and foaming, from one jutting crag to the next, and the next below, then leaped in one smooth sheet into the impetuous river. So, far above all sources of human sorrow, all painful vicisitudes, whether of nations or of individuals, moves on the cource of Nature, true to her laws, and immutable as Him who fixed them.

"How can the sun shine so very brightly?" thought Marion; 'and the birds how sprightly they sing, as if nothing had happened—while my poor Tromp is dead—my brave; loving, generous Tromp! Dead! and even now to be buried from my sight for ever! How can they sing while my heart is almost breaking?" But sing they would, and they carolled wild, sweet requiems over the fresh sods of the grave, while Marion watered the turf with tears of affection and regret.

Scarce were the traces of weeping removed from her cheeks, when the far distant sound of a bugle floating at intervals on the breeze, reminded her of the multifarious and interesting duties of the day.—To set about the preparations for a breakfast—to renew her neglected toilet, and make all ready for her approaching visitors, were tasks which admitted of no longer delay, and in variety of occupation, Marion found grief's best penaca.

Hour after hour passed on. The sun reached his meridian; and now the shadows were thrown toward the East. Another soft, hazy sunset succeeded, differing from that of the preceeding evening only in the georgeousness of the clouds, that hung like festoons of crimson and gold, over the couch of the monarch of day, as he sank to his rest, etherial drapery, as if in playfulness, peeped, over and anon, the beautiful star of evening, Hesperas, so loath it seemed to bid the lovely earth good night.

Again the hush of twilight—again the funerel stillness of evening—again the farwell glance abroad, ere the cabin was closed for the night—midnight once more and doubly midnight seemed the hour, mid the gloom and seclusion of a wilderness! But where was Rudolph?

Aronack, disappointed in his nefarious attempt upon the life of Marion, and well aware that precaution would be taken to prevent a second essay of the kind, had formed a new scheme of mischief; and the hour of its accomplishment was now come.

With a malignant smile, which spoke both triumph and derision, he stole again from his hiding place among the ragged rocks. In addition to his usual appendages, the Indian weapons, he was laden with a rough crate of dry moss, sticks and other combustibles which he placed round the cabin and proceeded with demon-like cruelty to ignite, patiently watching the kindling sparks as the winds fanned them into active flame. One wide sheet of fire quickly wrapped the little dwelling in its terrible embrace, while, mid the roar and cracking of the rapid flame, were mingled the yells of the terrified woman, and the shouts of an agonized father who forgot that he was away from help or pity.

One moment sufficed to snatch his daughter from her flame-wreathed pallet, and to liberate his companions of the chase—but that single moment was the last that was left him; to repass the entrance and save the direst necessaries was impracticable.

Hurrying to a place of security, they gazed in dismay on the blazing ruins of their little happy home. The flames tossed by the winds, threw a lorid, fitful light upon crag, and tree, and sky, rendering the aspect of nature, frowning and gloomy.

"Some enemy hath done this, my father!" whispered the maiden. At this instant she started and pressed closely to his side, from a new cause of alarm. For on her nervous, sensitive ear fell the strained bow and parting arrow. The missile whizzed over the bosom of Marion, grazing the feathery mantle that enveloped her, and entered the breast of Vanarden.

"My God! my child!" he murmured, dropped heavily to the earth. And with one fierce and terrible struggle, yielded up his life.

But Marion! who can describe the utter desolateness and heart-sickness of this lone being? In the depth of a wilderness—at the fearful midnight hour—houseless, friendless, unprotected, conscious of helplessness, and too well assured of the proximity of a deadly foe! How strange and melancholy the scene around her—faintly illumined now, by the flickering light of the fire which had nearly finished its work of destruction; now hidden in sudden darkness—then thrown out to distinct view by the quivering blaze, which shot up in fitful spires as it caught new eliment, while the deep darkness of the black ground afforded a striking relief to the picture. The winds having risen, after night fall, now whistled shrilly through the breaks of the mountains and murmured among the forest-trees, which stretched for miles in dense masses beyond the river, producing a sound resembling the roaring of the distant ocean, while heavy pall-like clouds were scudding over the sky, sometimes obscuring, then again revealing the quiet stars as they looked coldly down; and the accumulated horrors of the night seemed aggraved by the howling of the dogs, as they scampered wildly past their dead master, snuffed the air and wailed over him, vainly seeking to elicit some token of his regard; or dashing furiously toward the ruins, chased each other in circles round the mouldering cinders.

There she stood amoug the crags of the the mountain, beautiful in her purity and child-like grace, pale and cold as a statue of monumental marble. Casting her mantle over the lifeless remains of her adored father, she imprinted a kiss of filial tenderness upon his brow; then cried audibly, as she stretched her arms to heaven, "I am not alone, even here, I am not all alone;" and she poured out her soul in fervant prayer to Him whose eye never slumbers; whose mercy seat is at all hours acceptable to the voice of anguish. "Be Thou my father," she cried, and teach me to put my whole trust in thee; evermore, "be Thou my saviour and my God!" And the prayer of faith went up from that dark desolate cliff, as on cherub's wings, to the Omnicient, who scans the human heart, and sheds over the trustful one, a spirit of holy resignation, with fortitude to endure—and if need be, with even more than mortal strenth, to meet and combat the manifold ills of life:

This was Aronack's moment of complete triuumph. He gazed on the victim of his cruelty, now wholly in his toils. As she rose from her devotions, he darted from his recess, snatched up the young girl as if she had been an infant, and throwing her shivering and exhausted, across his shoulder, sprang forward towards the ally. With the agility of the wild goat, he leaped the chasm—threaded the the mazes of the bush-wood—crushed with giant strength the draperies of wild vines, which, with interlaced boughs, often impeded his way—swung himself from the over-hanging rocks, and soon plunged into the depths of the wooded valley.

Where was thy guardian angel, then, thou lone and helpless one? He was faithful to his trust, and thou wert safe in the midst of danger. Even thy fell prosecutor, the proud Aronack, was but a minister of Heaven's purposes of good, to thee!

Aronack had advanced but a third of a league after winning the ravine, before he was alarmed by the sound of voices and the tramp of many footsteps. He hesitated, hastened, glanced, then listened again. The narrrow path was bound on one side by smooth, perpendicular cliffs, which it would have been difficult to scale, under any circumstances. No nook or bush could he descry, which offered a place of concealment. Among the approaching voices, he distinctly recognized the merry tones of Rudolph! One moment of irresolution, and the savage dashed into the foaming current of the Juniata. An involuntary scream from the affrighted maiden betrayed the savage; for instantly Rudolph and one of his comrades were breasting the stream in eager and determined pursuit.

A waning moon was just gilding the eastern horizon, but though imperfect the light that penetrated the broken masses of trees which overshadowed the opposite bank, was sufficient to enable the pursuers to distinguish the uncovered head of the Indian, girt with a fillet, from which dangled a broken plume of white feathers.

Rudolph gained upon the savage who now became intent on his own personal safety, The prize seemed no longer worth the risk and the trouble it cost him. And Aronack tossed his light freight to a distance with execration upon the whole family of white men—giving to the strong and rapid current the prize for which he had watched so zealously, and stained his hands in innocent blood so remosslessly. Forced by an eddy towards the margin, Marion was caught by her dress, and held firmly by some reeds or briars that dipped into the stream until Rudolph was able to reach her. The momentary arrest saved her from inevitable death. "The voice was her's!" cried Rudolph. "Le Diable! Aronack! He shall have summary justice for this act of villany. By the Holy Mother, he is swimming to to hell hell, or I'm no marksman! Un bon voyage!" and he whirled his hatchet aloft with such force and dexterity, that it descended full upon the naked head of the Indian, cleaving the scull and burrying the weapon to its helve, in the gushing brains. Slowly sank the once brave and powerful chief, while the blood stained waves closed for ever over the remains of Aronack.

Hartford, Conn.

Imprisonment for debt.—We observe that efforts will be made to agitate anew the Bankrupt bill. Upon a question in which so much depends on the details, we may expect to find difficulty and difference of opinion, even among the friends of the general principles of the bill; but it has always seemed to us that the most efficient remedy, and one which might be carried with slight efforts, is the repeal of the law authorizing imprisonment for debt.

New York has found it to be her interest to adopt such a law, and at this advanced stage of civilzation, it is matter of surprise that this remnant of barbarism should continue a stain upon our statute books.

It enables one creditor to deprive the wife and children of the personal services of the husband and father, upon whose daily labor they depend for support; it enables one creditor the only means of payment, and compels the unfortunate, to take the benefit of our insolvent laws when he would have made his way and paid his debts.

It enables a single creditor to deprive the State of the services of a valuable citizen, and is opposed alike to the dictates of humanity and to a wise public polity.

Dr. Johnson beautifully remarks, that "when a friend is carried to his grave, we at once find excuses for every weakness and palliation for every fault; we recollect a thousand endearments which before glided off our minds without impressions—a thousand favors unrepaid, a thousand duties unperformed—and wish for his return, not so much that we may receive as that we may bestow happiness and recompense that kindness which before we never understood."

Latest instance of absence of mind.—The papers says:—That a woman lately sat down with her child in her lap and a loaf of bread, for the purpose of giving it a piece of bread and butter; but by some strange mistake, buttered the child's face and cut its head off, before she thought what she was about!

A lie in his mouth.—The murderer Robert McConagy, was executed in Huntingdon, Pa., on Friday the 5th ult. He was attended by clergyman, to whom, at he moment of being swung off, he solemnly asseverated his innocence, declaring that, standing as he did on the very threshold of eternity, he knew nothing of the crime for which he was to suffer. The clergyman withdrew, the drop fell, and the rope broke. The cord was doubled, and just as the officer was preparing to strike away the drop, the wretched man asked for a little time to make an open confession of his crime. It was granted. He confessed his guilt, and was hung!

A sponge.—A fellow steps into a printing office and asks for a few papers containing the latest news.

He is furnished of course.

'Thank you, sir—good by," says the man condescendingly, as he walks away.

'Would that we could pay the papermaker as easy as that!' mentally exclaims the printer. 'Let's try it:'

'Thank you, Mr. Papermaker, for this ream.' 'Ay, but I must be paid too!'

Publishing papers and giving them away is a glorious business!

A soldier of the U. S. stationed at Eastport, was recently put into the work house, by the civil authories, for an offence against the law. The officers turned out the detachment, and took the offender away by force. This act produced a good deal of excitement among the citizens. So enraged were the members of the artillery company, that they assembled, and stationing themselves at the head of the street, would have fired upon the U. S. troops, had they not been restrained by the pacific counsel of the select men.

FROM THE NEW ORLEANS PICKAYUNE.

Green Mountain Girls.—We hear the Vermont girls thus spoken of:

"They are as plump as a pippin, round as a ring, sweet as a rose; their glowing cheeks are but an index of their warm, ardent, lively, determined disposition. One embrace, one real clincher, is enough to call a general rush in the icy veins of an old bachelor, of set on fire the purple channels of a man of sensibility. The fair of Vermont 'against the world,' in every point of view of which you can conceive; they are giants in intellect—soft and enchanting as the snowy couch on which old Sol sinks himself to rest—bold as a lion, easily won—once gained, always faithful."

Creole Girls.—We throw down the glove to this fellow and challenge him to mortal combat if he does not instantly confess that all he has uttered is bombast, and at the same time admit that the Creole girls of Louisiana are the loveliest and most fascinating creatures in the universe! Their eyes are bright as the stars of night and their hearts are warm as their own sunny sky. Whithout "clinching" a fellow they can set his his heart bumping, his head swimming, his veins burning, his fingers itching, his heels dancing his nerves trembling, his hair standing; and his mouth watering! They can do all this with a single glance and never "shed a tear." Just "like winking" they conquer all before them. They are angels--that is, they would be if we would let them; but we wishing them to be women, with heavenly sweetness they condescend to be mortal just to oblige us. The Creole girls can't help being beautiful. It is not their fault, poor things. If a foreign enemy was fired by their charms to come here for "beauty and booty," why, did not the flashing of the dark eyes at once enkindle indignant fires in their fathers and brothers to drive the insolent invaders back! The girls of Louisiana are the mellowest fruit of Eden, and not "forbidden fruit" either, and just the fruit to our taste, too. Let this man who talks about Green Mountain girls come and stand before us and ask pardon for the strange hallucination of his ideas. Let him prostrate himself before Creole beauty, and it will be happiness for him to melt in the sunbeam of Creole forgiveness.

Notwithstanding which, the Vermont girls (in our private opinion) are legitimate descendant from mother Eve who was a very amiable and beautiful lady, only a little too fond of hard cider. We are well impressed with the great truth that females, as well as countries, are generally one as good as another and sometimes a good deal "more so;" therefore we are inclined to pronounce the Green Mountain ladies "pretty fair" and the Creole fair ones fair enough; so, don't go to pulling hair or tearing caps about it, for we don't want our face scratched between either of you.

WASHINGTON CITY.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 2, 1841.

CRIME! CRIME!! CRIME!!!

Crime is still upon the increase. Murder after murder—outrage after outrage—riots, assaults, thefts, robbery, arson, bank delinquencies and counterfeiters The papers teem with every species of crime and vice.

From the 10th to the 24th ultimo, (Dec) we find the following catalogue of crime. We begin with the inhuman murder of Mr. Suydam at New Brunswick, under every circumstance which ever could, or ever did, aggrivate crime. The murdered man being of an amiable character, and had befriended the remorseless wretch who butchered him in cold blood!

The editor of the Sun extends the catalogue thus:—

"The feelings of the community had scarcely recovered from the shock experienced at the details of the murder of Mr. Suydam at New Brunswick, for a paltry sum of money, when they have been again startled with those of a similar case in Philadelphia. Before the ink was dry upon the paper which bore the particulars of this last crime to the world, we are startled with another account more atrocious than either. The Portsmouth (Va.) Times states that on the night of the 14th inst., a family of five persons was murdered in Southampton county, by a wretch whose name is not given. The persons murdered were a Mr. Scott, an aged Quaker, his sister, also advanced in life, a little white girl, about nine years of age, named Pretlow, and a negro woman and her child."[!!!!]

Next we hear of another murder in New Jersey.

"The Newark Daily Advertiser of the 19th, informs us that another murder, similar to that of Mr. Suydam, has been committed in that State. It is stated that the body of Mr. R. Rutherford, formerly a merchant of Johnsonburg, was found near Jugtown, Warren county, deposited under a coffin, where another person had been buried previously. The appearance of the grave created suspicions of its having been disturbed, and its examination led to the discovery.

Mr. R. is said to have been a man of wealth, engaged in buying and selling cattle, and at the time of his leaving home had a large amount of money on his person."

We think the pious Dr. Miller had better have laid out the $100,000 in spreading the gospel in his own State which he collected from the people to spread the gospel in the Mississippi Valley. "The tree is known by the fruit."

Next we have the Dinwidie (Va.) murder 13th ultimo, that of Mr. Lewis only 18 years of age, by J. Conway, Petersburg.

Next, "The Salisbury-st. Murder. Cook, the negro man, whose throat was cut by another negro named Anderson, on Friday night last, died yesterday morning. It is said that Anderson approached him with every appearance of friendship, offering him his hand. Immediately afterwards he seized him by the neck and drew the fatal knife across his throat."

Again:—The news of "a man named Charles Cook was executed at Schenectady on Friday last, for the murder of Mrs. Merry in October last."

STILL MORE REVOLTING.

The most barbarous of all the murders we have referred to, is mercy compared to the following, because they were soon out of their misery.

LEANDER, of Richmond, Va., thus describes a most revolting case which happened in the prison of that place:—

"It appears that a jury of inquest was called on the 7th inst. upon the body of a man named Shepherd, who died on Saturday night in the city prison. The verdict of the jury was in substance, that the death was caused by exposure and the want of those necessaries required to protect him from the inclemency of the weather.

"Thus a man has died in the prison of our city from that description of cruel exposure which has so often excited our indignation when read of in the history of barbarous ages—died from want of those attentions which we give even to the very brute.

"But this is not all. There are forty human beings imprisoned there, and but sixteen meagre blankets to divide among them—and, we believe ten beds of straw, such as they are, for their repose. In the cell where Shepherd died there was scarce straw enough to fill a hat, and the poor creature had not even the rude solace of a pallet of straw on which to die—but he perished like a dog on the moor."

* Where are the gospel spreaders!!!! Where are the christians!!!! Alas!—What say ye men of the United States?—We ask not women! They are rather too busily engaged in devising schemes to raise money to educate pious young men to spread the ☞GOSPEL"☜ (save the mark.)

There is a picture for you. $8,000,000 per annum paid for such gospel-spreading as this! rather more than our saviour sold for. The deliberate atrocity of the circumstances attending those inhuman butcheries of innocent children and the savage mangling bodies of adults detailed by eye witnesses. When we reflect on those whole sale human butcheries, and the ruthless abandonment of of human beings to perish by peacemeal—by the shameless and unfeeling brutality of the citizens of Richmond Va., we can find no parallel for such monsters even amongst the tartan hords and roving savages of antiquity.

"By their fruits ye shall know them."

These crimes have called out the following just remarks from the accomplished and humane editor of the Baltimore Clipper.

"Foul and Atrocious Murder.—Amongst all the recent records of murder the following from the Portsmouth (Va) Times of the 16th, for cruelty and atrocity takes the lead. How it is that enlighted as we are said to be, and enjoying all the blessings of religion and education, men should exist amongst us so deadened to every feelings of humanity as to commit acts at which the heart shudders? Is it that the hand of justice has become palsied, and that no jury could be found who will condemn the wilful and deliberate murderer? or that the nature of civilized man is changed, and refinement brings with it barbarity? The accounts and suicides which have recently filled the columns newspapers, though food for the editor, are but mournful pictures of the public morals, and it is time that public examples should be made, in order that enlightened nations may not have it in their power to say that we are retrograding into barbarism.

A man poisoned his wife in Tomkins County, N. Y.

But we resume the detail of the 14 days crime. We merely confine ourself to the accounts that have reached us.

OUTRAGES.

At Vicksburg, (Mi.) Cooksey stabbed Mr. Kline—bound in $1000.

The Detroit Advertiser states that "25 men went to the house of Mr. P. L. Davis of Ookland County, and committed the most brutal outrages on his stock that villainy could suggest. They killed about thirty hogs, among which were several valuable Berkshire breeders, and drove or carried off, four fine horses, one double wagon and harness, one bull, twenty-three sheep, six hundred bushels of corn, besides several harrows, ploughs, and other farming utensils. 19 of the band have been taken up."

FRACAS at Ciucinnati in the Theatre 12th inst. Blows were given and wounds inflicted.

RIOT at Jefferson City Mo., and two men wounded. Mr. Watson, Secretary of the Senate and Mr. Thomas.

ROBBRY in Baltimore—two barrels of flour.

Arrest of a woman in same city for receiving stolen goods—committed.

Two assalts and battery, one dangerous in same city.

Three cases of arson, one in New York and two in Philadelphia.

Fourteen men and eight women, taken up in one city (Baltimore) from the 12th to 13th ultimo for riot and drunkenness. So states the Sun.

Fifty-three sportsmen of color captured in Baltimore.

Two cases for breach of the peace.

Three bank delinquencies.

The editors may well ask the question: what are we coming to?

Doubtless similar cases have occurred in the same proportion in all our cities.

What say you to this; "whole world" convertion, Mr. Editor of the New York Express? This editor not long since asserted, that by the aid of tracks and missionaries "the whole world had become christainized and civilized." Disgrace and infamy to the man who sells his honor and his country for money!

This party are now mustering all their forces—even buying up penny papers to make a grand onset simultaneously with the commencement of the HARRISON ADMINISTRATION, as we shall show in our next paper. Those editors, therefore, who have basely sold their country for paltry gain, may prepare to be UNMASKED.

☞ The Howard Institute, otherwise known as the Dorcas Society. It appears that this society which has fallen into the hands Dr. Ely's christian party in politic, are about to ask Congress for money. We have room but for a word on the subject.

This is a shop where cloths are made up cheap by poor women, and sold out cheap to poor men and boys; and many are given away to those who cannot buy. This is the intention of the founders.

But we called there a few weeks since and priced a coat for on orphan boy, he being present. The coat was too small in the sleeves and of very inferior quality.—We called at White's and found cloth worth double the money and 50 cts. cheaper.

The other benevolent societies in our next.

ODDS AND ENDS.

"Here, Terence, hold this paper by the fire." "Which?" "Hold this paper by the fire, I say, and let it dry." "Be the bowers, the papers are dry enough now-a-days."

"I acknowledge I'm sowed up," as the coat said the to the tailor when he put the last stitch in it.

"Truth is powerful and will brevail," as the thief said when the jury brought him in guilty of stealing a bible.

A Galveston paper says there is a young lady in Texas each of whose feet measures eighteen inches. It is the first time we ever heard of two feet making a yard.

"I melt in your embrace," as the snow said to the thaw.

"Don't tell any body," as the thief said to the dumb man.

The "Buckeye Blacksmith," on returning to his anvil, which he had not seen for several months, beat it unmercifully.

"It's touch and go about here," as the cannon said when it saw the match coming.

An Irishman being asked if he was treated with much hosbitality while in England, replied, "Faith, yis, I was in the hospital all the time."

"Come rest in this bosom," as the whale observed to Jonah.

A REBUKE.

We learn, says the New York signal, that General Harrison has sent some capital answers to the greedy applicants for office, who have already begun to besiege him by letter. In reply to a well known individual of this city, it is rumored that he briefly and significantly remarked that he was not yet President of the United States, and that when he was, it would be ample season for him to enter upon the discharge of the duties of that office.

"Mr Van Buren loves the people." [Globe.

But the people don't return his passion. The poor man's "crossed in love."

A distinguished mathematician has decided that—in the promotion of public or private charities—one woman is worth just thirteen men and a half.

We have just heard of a man who applied lately for a divorce from his wife, assigning a reason, that she had awful cold feet, and never would keep them on her own side of the bed.

A Whig whose family are all Whigs, with the exception of one son, upon being asked the question by the census-taker, "are any of your family blind, deaf, or dumb?" Answered, "I have one son who is blind, he is a Van Burenite."

Never have we seen any thing so thoroughly accused as the Democacy at this time.—Globe.

Probably you never saw a basket of eels with a shovel full of live embers thrown over them.

"We steel upon you," as Jessup's axes say to the forests in the far west.

A St. Louis member has introduced into the Missouri Legislature, a bill against betting on elections. It includes the betters and the stakeholders, and fines both to the amount of the money or property bet. It also punishes by fine any person who may publish a bet, or assist in any way in making it.

"You Whigs expect that Harrison will work maracles?" No, we do not expect that he will work maracles; but we do expect he will cast out devils.

*We would be glad of Leander would inform us whether to this revolting picture of barbarity we are to add the total absence of fire in the prison cells; also how many benevolent societies there are in Richmond.

POETRY.

BOB FLETCHER AND HIS WIFE.

I once knew a ploughman, Bob Fletcher his name,
Who was old and was ugly, and so was his dame,
Yet they lived quite contented and free from all strife,
Bob Fetcher, the ploughman, and Judy, his wife.

As the moon streak'd the east and the night fled away,
They would rise up for labor, refresh'd for the day,
And the song of the lark as it rose on the gale,
Found Bob at the plough, and his wife at the pale.

A neat little cottage in front of a grove,
Where in youth they first gave their young hearts up to love.
Was the solace of age, and to them doubly dear,
As it called up the past with a smile or a tear.

Each tree had its thought, and the vow could impart,
That mingled in youth the warm wish of the heart;
The thorn was still there and the blossoms it bore,
And the song from its top seemed the same as before.

When the curtain of night over nature was spread,
And Bob had returned from the plough to his shed,
Like a dove on her nest her reposed from all care,
If his wife and his youngsters contented were there.

I have passed by the door when the evening was gray
And the hill and the landscape were fading away,
And heard from the cottage with grateful surprise,
The voice of thanksgiving, like incense arise.

And I thought of the proud who would look down with scorn,
On the neat little cottage, the grove and the thorn,
And felt that the riches and follies of life,
Were dross to contentment, like Bob and his wife.

INDIAN RESTORATIVE

For Restoring and Promoting the Growth of Hair.

THIS article not only promotes the Growth of Hair, but makes it soft and pliable. It prevents its falling off, and affords effectual nourishment to the Roots, restores it to its natural color, improves the beauty, and gradually changes light or red hair, to that of a brown or black. It also removes Dandruff, prevents baldness, and so extremely pleasant to use, that parents will find it of great advantage in cleaning children's heads; (as it is of great benefit to the health,) and is far superior to all other Restoratives, Balsams or Oils—and particularly in cases of Fever, when the hair begins to fall off. There has never been any thing so effectual as the 'Indian Restorative,'

J. F CALLAN

WASHINGTON,

Has just received a fresh supply of

Perfumery, Fancy Soaps and Cosmetics,

Manufactured by Johnson & Co. Wholesale perfumers, (successors to Snyder & Co.) sign of the Civet Cat, corner of Cedar and William stre. New York.

Cold Cream.

This exquisite preparation will be found particularly efficacious in all cuticular irritation, and as an emollient, its soothing and cooling properties stand unrivalled. No pains have been spared to produce it of the rarest quality, from the purest of materials, and we confidently offer it as an article of first rate toilet standing, which if equalled, certainly cannot be surpassed by any composition whatever.

Florida Water.

A most delicious perfume and agreeable change from the Eau de Cologne, whose delicacy and potent fragrancy it rivals. From its retentive qualities, it will be found an economical and powerful distributor sweets for handkerchiefs or linen.

Bears' Oil.

This preparation is recommended as possessing all the restorative qualities of the Bears' Grease, without the unpleasantness attending its use, and by the strength it acquires by concentration, a much less quantity will produce the seme result It has also another property—that of purity, which however carefully Bears Grease may be prepared it cannot possess, indeed the Oil has so far superseded the use of the Grease by its superior cleanliness, that the latter is bot in little or no demand. The Oil now offered has been clarified from all impurities in the most skiltul manner, by a chemical process, and is rendered very agreeable by being highy scented with the pure Persian Otto of Roses

GRECIAN DYE.

For changing the Color of the Hair, from Red or Grey to a Brown or Black.

Directions for Use.—1st. Too great care cannot be taken to cleanse the hair from grease, as the dye will not take effect unless it be entirely removed. To do which, wash the hair in a solution of about a quarter of an ounce of pearlash to a quart of water, until it be perfectly clean; and, when it has become perfectly dry, is fitted to receive the preparation.

2d. To prevent the Dye from coloring the skin grease the part around the hair which may be liable to be touched with it.

3d. To apply the Dye, shake it well, so as to raise the settling at the bottom; then, (having a piece of spongeready, tied to the end of a smao stick, about an inch wide,) pass a small comb into the roots of thehair to prevent the skin becominn discolored, pour a little into a cup or glass, comt the hair in one direction, dip your sponge into thd dye, and rub it over the hair until it becomes quite wet; let it remain till dry; then comb the hair in an opposite direction; repeat it till brown, and so on till the hair becomes black. The application could be made, the person sitting in the sun, for tee brighter the atmosphere, thefiner the dye bgi homes. If applied at night, or in the damp, it woo have the desired effect.

4th. The day after the application of the dywash the dye in a solution of salt. (Form it o ton ounce of salt to one pint of rain water.) This wi set the color, and give it brilliancy.

Lastly. To avoid soiling the Skin or Linen, throw a cloth over the shoulders, wear gloves to protect the hands, and should any of the liquid accidentally drop upon the skin, wipe it off immedetely with a wet towel, and be careful not to taker overmuch of the dye in the sponge at once. It may not be amiss to observe, that after the dye is set, washing the hair will rather improve than be anv injury to it.

Honey Water.

As a wash for the hair, or for imparting a mild fragrancy to linen, this perfume possesses a delicacy which renders it peculiarly agreeable; in warm weather, from its revifying properties, it must always be considered as a neat and appropriate article for the toilet.

OTTAR GUL.

SPIRIT OF ROSES.

The perfume of the Rose has something so transcendently etherial, that it obtains in Persia, its native home, the name of Ottar or Soul: and the east of Roses, when these flowers break into bloom, is there celebrated with all that can be conceived of Eastern magnificence. To describe its qualities would be superfluous—sufficient it is to say, that the Spirit of "Roses" is inferior only to the genuine Persian Ottar, and indeed it approximates so closely as to be but with great difficulty distinguished. As a favorite with the fair, their own lovely type, it will ever stand unrivalled, and be cherished by them so long as taste and elegance hall remain.

Rose Water.

This is an article of universal repute, so much so, that it has even found its way into the mysteries of culinary skill, by which it is employed in imparting a flavor to conserves, &c. It behoves every one, therefore, to take particular care from whence they obtain it. Kimball and Co. pledge themselves that their Rose Water is a simple distillation from the queen of flowers, and that it is entirely free from any artificial compound; consequently, itsna tive delicacy and fragrancy are not only preserved out its use rendered innoxious as that of pure spring water.

Amboyna Lotion.

Next to cleanliness, (says the most celebrated dentist of the day,) I know nothing so conducin s to the preservation of the Teeth and Gums, or to he purifying the breath, as the Amboyna Lotion and I advise every one whosets a value upon their possession invariably to use it.".

With such strong remarks upon its merits,—would be futile in the propritors to add in prais one word of their own; they will therefore confine themselves to giving proper directions for its use.

The Teeth should be cleansed with a soft brush and the Botaneal Tooth Powder every morning and the mouth and Gums rinsed with the Lotion byattending to these simple directions, those who have good Teeth, will infallibly preserve them and those whose Teeth have a tendency to decay will have the consolation of discoveing that they can proceed no further.

STEAMBOAT AUGUSTA--NOTICE.

The Steamboat Augusta will land and take off passengers at the following landings on Potomac River, every other day from date, viz: Pye's and Budd's Landings, Maryland shore, and at Quantico, on the Virginia side of the river.

WASHINGTON BRANCH RAILROAD.—The passenger trains on this road will daily start as follows, to wit.

From Washington for Baltimore, at 6 o'clock, a m
and at 4 3-4 do. p m

From Baltimore for Washington, at 9 o'clock, a m
and at 4 do p m

Passengers by the morning train, if proceeding westwardly, can connect with the western train on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, at the Relay House, reach Frederick in time for the western stages that leave there at 12 o'clock noon, or Harper's Ferry in time for the evening train to Winchester; while passengers travelling eastwardly are conveyed through to Philadelphia without unnecessary detention at Baltimore, reaching Philadelphia in time for the evening line to New York, and thus accomplishing the journey from Washington to New York in one day.

Under no circumstances whatever can the train be delayed beyond the hour fixed for starting. It is, therefore, respectfuily suggested that passengers procure their tickets the previous evening; to enable them to do which, the office will be kept open till 7 1-2 o'clock, p. m feb 1 SAM. STETTINIUS, Agent.

By order.

NOTICE TO WESTERN TRAVELLERS.

FARE 2 dollars cheaper than any other line to Frederick or Wheeling.

The Fredericktown stage leaves the office opposite Gadsby's Hotel, daily, for Frederick and Wheeling. Passengers securing their seats at this office or in Baltimore, have a decided preference over all other passengers that steam it, for the West.

The stage will leave Fredericktown daily on the arrival of the Western stages, and arrive at Washington in time to take all Southern routes. By this line the passengers will arrive at Winchester the same day.

The coaches and teams on this route are of the first quality, with skiltul and attentive drivers, and the proprietor pledges himself that every attention and accommodation will be given to the passengers who give this line their patronage.

feb 19 JOHN BROWN, Proprietor.

AGENCY AT WASHINGTON.

JAMES H. CAUSTIN, (late of Baltimore having made this city his permanent residence and located his dwelling and office directly opposite to the Department of State, will undertaeke with his accustomed zeal and diligence the settlement of claims generally, and more particularly claims before Congress against the United States or the several departments thereof, and before any board of commissioners that may be raised for the adjustment of spoilation or other claims. He has now in charge the entire class arising out of French spoilatsons prior to the year 1800, with reference to which, in addition to a mass of documents and proofs in his possession, he has access to those in the archives of the Government.

Claimants and pensioners or the Navy fund, &c. bounty lands, return duties, &c. and those requiring life insurance, can have their business promptly attended to by letter, (post paid,) and thus relieve themselves from an expensive and inconvenient personal attendance.

Having obtained a commission of Notary Public, he is prepared to furnish legalized copies of any required public documents or other papers. He has been so long engaged in the duties of an agent, that it can only be necessary now to say that economy and prompt attention shall be extended to all business confided to his care; and that, to enable him to render his services and facilities more efficacious, hehas become familiar with all the forms of office.

SHERWOOD'S ELECTRO MAGNETIC REMEDIES FOR CHRONIC DISEASES of he class of Hypetrophy, including the forms of Scrofula, viz: Tubercula Consumption, Dyspepsia, Chronic Disease of the Liver, of the Heart of the Spleen, of the Kidneys, of the Spine, White Swellngs, Scrofulous Sore Eyes, Scald Head King' Evil, Leucorrbœa, Chlorosis, Menorrhaga or Females complaints.

These are but different modificatians of the sam disease, arising from the same cause, distinguished by the same diagnosis, and curable by the same remedies. Their common cause is an irreguia action of the Electro-Galvanic forces in the system; they may all be detected by pressure upon the sides of the vertebræ and glands of the neck which elicits the Electro-Galvanic symptom, and they may be cured bythese Electro-magnetic remedies: The latter are accompanied by a compendious medical treatise, explaining the principles she discovery upon which they are founded, only stating the manner in which they are to be applied In this work Dr. Sherwood demonstrates the fact that every part of the human body, together with every particle of animate and inanimate matter is either in a negative or positivestate of electricity, and that every motion, in all matter, whether in the largest masses or in the smallest particles- is produced by the attracting and repelling forces of this universal principle. The morbid action which produces disease of the organs or limbs. he proves to be occasioned by the undue preponderanee of one of these forces in the system and his remedies restore health by subduing this irreguar action to an equilibrium. By this means the very seeds of the disease are eradicated, and n permanent cure effected, even in cases where all hope of relief from other sources is abandoned. The Electro-Magnetic remedies are the only preparations applicable to this prevailing class of diseases and they never disappoint the confidence reposed in them Thesymptoms of the class of diseases to which they are applicable can be discovered, under the idretions contained in the work which accompaniee than without the aid of a physician, and they can be used with perfect safety and success without dieting or nconvenience, or any other further advice than this work affords. PROPOSALS

FOR

PUBLISHING BY SUBSCRIPTIONS

The Authentic Report of the Controversial Discussion, that took place in the City of Dublin, in the year 1827, between the Rev. THOMAS MAGUIRE, and the Rev R. T. P. POPE.

This celebrated work, the most remarkable controversal discussion of modern times, having gone through twenty-one editions in England and Ireland, where it is still read with extraordinary vidity, and in the United States passed through three editions, all of which are exhusted to the last copy; and the demand for it from all quarters, Catholic and Protestant, being still very great, it is proposed to re-publish it in Weekly Numbers at such a price as to put it within the reach of all without oppressing any.

Those in the City of N. York, who wish the work, will be served by leaving their names with the publisher, John Doyle, 294, Pearl Street, those at a distance can have it regularly mailed to them, by remitting one dollar in a post-paid letter.

Agents:—Mr. Patrick Conolly, 118 Ann St. Boston;—Henry Mc Keon, Willings Alley, Philadelphia;—Mr. John Farnon, Utica, N. Y.;—Mr. Mathew McLeod, Georgetown, D. C.;—Mr. Peter Haynes, Savannah, Geo.—and the office of the U. S. Catholic Miscellany, Charleston, S. C.

It is a well known fact that this great controversy has converted more sectaries to the Catholic Church in England and Ireland, than any other work whatever; and has also been the happy means of bringing great numbers to the true faith in the United States. It is therefore hoped that every sincere Catholic will lend his aid, by putting down his name, to prevent so valuable a work from being out of print, more particularly when for his subscription, he will receive the utmost value.

CONDITIONS.

1. One thousand copies only will be printed.

2. The paper and print will both be excellent.

3. It will be issued in weekly parts at twelve and a-half cents each part payable on delivery.

4. The number of parts it will make cannot be ascertained with accuracy at present, but should it exceed eight, the overplus will be given gratis.

Cabinet, Chair, and Sofa Manufactory, AND UPHOLSTER

INDIAN RESTORATIVE

For Restoring and Promoting the Growth of Hair.

THIS article not only promotes the Growth of Hair, but makes it soft and pliable. It prevents its falling off, and affords effectual nourishment to the Roots, restores it to its natural color, improves the beauty, and gradually changes light or red hair, to that of a brown or black. It also removes Dandruff, prevents baldness, and so extremely pleasant to use, that parents will find it of great advantage in cleaning children's heads; (as it is of great benefit to the health,) and is far superior to all other Restoratives, Balsams or Oils—and particularly in cases of Fever, when the hair begins to fall off. There has never been any thing so effectual as the 'Indian Restorative,'
